From the Chaplain's Desk

"And you will be my witnesses' in Jerusalem, Judea, and to the ends of the earth." Acts 1:8.

Christianity first spread into Germany through the work of faithful Christians from the church which the apostle John planted in Smyrna (Rev. 2:11).

Modern Germany was a part of two Roman provinces then, known as Gaul and Germania.

The earliest missionaries and believers there suffered terribly at the hands of pagan persecution. Many brave early Christians, like the first pastor in Germany Pothius, his deacon Sanctus, the faithful slave-girl Blandina, and the worthy child Ponticus, gave their lives for their newfound faith. It was after this first outbreak of persecution that a missionary named Irenaeus was sent to become the new pastor, who was himself a disciple of Polycarp, pastor of Smyrna, who was a disciple of the apostle John. That means there are only four degrees of separation between the first Christians in Germany, and the Lord Jesus Himself (not even the Mennonite-game can beat those odds!).

Or again, the faithful missionary Boniface (the St. Boniface who everything in Winnipeg is named after) who brought the German people back to the true faith after they had lived some three hundred years in heresy. Or his faithful helper Agatha (the St. Agath who the town is named after, and who you might even be named after!), a woman of such holiness that God worked many mighty miracles through her. These loyal and righteous ancient Christians gave our ancestors the deposit of holy faith which is ours today. Thank God for their faithfulness!

(If you want to know more about their stories, you can read them in Eusebius: Ecclesiastical History and Wilibald's The Life of Boniface.)
